THE GAZETTE.

FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 12, 1861. From the Memphis Bulletin.

The following lines were suggested by seeing an old man intently gazing at the American flag as it floated from the dome of one of the hotels in Memphis-"I live," said he, "in Mississippi, where they won't let that flag be raised, but I love that flag. I bore it through the Indian wars, and at New Orleans, under General Jackson. Lam sixtynine years of age. I was born and raised in this State. My father, an old Revolutionary soldier, was one of the earliest settlers. My me the land I love. My country I love. I love Tennessee; I am sorry I ever left her. I want to live where that flag waves. I don't tuce, Melon, Mushroom Spawn, Nasturtium, like the people of Mississippi; they call me a traitor, now"-

I have borne that flag in early years. To conquer a savage foe. Whose ravaging deeds on our then frontier, Brought terror, death and woe. And how we suffered 'mid toil and pain, 'Tis history will tell you how; Yet those, whose peace those wars did gain,

Can call me a traitor now. I bore that flag in New Orleans. Which city's doom was thought, Beyond the power of patriot means Ere the glorious Eighth was fought; But when I saw to the stripes and stars The British lion bow, I little thought, in my grateful prayers,

To be called a traitor now. No pelican flag was heard of then; No moon's lone star was found : No palmetto bush, with its shaggy stem, And the serpent coiled around; But the stars and stripes alone remained, And pray can you tell me how. That he, who bore that flag unstained.

Can be called a traitor now? Oh, had I remained in my native State, Where my chieftain's grave is made, Or had I been doomed to a similar fate, And my bones near his been laid: Or had he been spared for his country's good, I am sure he'd not allow

Those friends who in arms by him had stood, Should be branded as traitors now. But why, in my age, am I thus assailed? To my name why apply this stain?

Have I to my country ever failed, Or to society proved a bane? No! no such charge or kindred crime Can be stamped on my furrowed brow. But because rebellion I must decline, They call me a traitor now.

But yet, in my heart, I can't despair-My country, so free and pure, Whose toils and triumphs I helped to share, For ages will yet endure. When madmen cease, and calm react

And reason their minds endow. They'll then these cruel words retract That make me a traitor now. THE STUFFED CAT .- An old rag picker

died in Paris in a state of abject poverty. His only relation was a niece who lived as a servant with a green grocer. The girl always assisted her uncle as far as her means would permit. When she learned of his death, which took place suddenly, she was than usual for cash. on the point of marriage to a journeyman | mh 19 PEEL & STEVENS, 39 King-st. baker to whom she had long been attached .-The nuptial day was fixed, but Suzette had ened to tell her lover that the wedding must be deferred, she wanted the price of her bridal fluery to lay her uncle decently in the grave. Her mistress ridiculed the idea and exhorted her to leave the old man to be buried by charity. Suzette refused. The consequence was a quarrel in which the young woman lost her place and her lover, who sided with her mistress. She hastened to the miserable garret where her uncle had expired, and by sacrifice not only of the money for her wedding attire, but nearly all the rest of her slender wardrobe, she had the old man decently interred. Her pious task fulfilled, she sat alone in her uncle's room weeping bitterly, when the master of her faithless lover, a good looking young fellow entered .--"So my Suzette, I find you have lost your place," said he, "I am come to offer you one for life. Will you marry me?" "I sir!" said the, "you're joking." "No faith," said he: "I wan't a wife, and I'm sure I can't find a better." "But everybody would laughat you for marrying a poor girl like me," said Suzette. "O, if that is your only objection." said the young man, "we shall soon get over it, come along, my mother is prepared to receive you." Suzetta hesitated no longer.' but she wished to take with hera memorial of her deceased uncle-it was a cat he had for many years. The old man was so fond of the animal, that he determined that even death should not separate them, for he had her stuffed, and placed on the tester of his bed. As Suzette took down puss, she uttered an exclamation of surprise at finding it so heavy. The lover hastened to open the

DRAMATIC INCIDENT .-- Some years ago Booth was playing the elder "Brutus," at the "Mud Theatre," in Baltimore, and the wife of Andrew Jackson Allen, the American costumer, was the "Lucretia" of the night .-"Brutus" has to speak a long oration over the body of the martyred matron, but as the weather was bitterly cold, Mrs. Allen induced the manager to place a supernumerary | D PURPOSES .- One octave of the above, just boy upon the bier. As it was not necessary that any portion of the body should be seen. excepting the profile of the face, the deception was not discovered by Booth. The tragedian had proceeded a few lines in his speech when a slight shiver was observed to agitate the dead body. Booth ascribed this to the cold draught of air to which the self-immolated "Lucretia" was exposed, and went on; the boy writhed; Booth muttered between his teeth, "Lie still, madam, recollect you'rr dead." Another violent contortion of the corpse. The orator became expited, and exclaimed loud enough to be heard in the pit. "Confound it, madam, if you don't stop that infernal wriggling, I'll leave the stage!" He proceeded, however, until he came to the

The were althousand louis concealed in the

"Behold that frezen corpse; See where the lost Lucretia sleeps in death." Here the bier shook as though its burthen had been galvanized, and the body sprang from the trestle in its winding sheet, and rushing to the footlights, exclaimed "Hang me if I am going to lay on that ere bench to be drowned!" It is impossible to conceive the ludicrous figure the boy presented. He was enveloped in several white sheets, the ends of which trailed behind him, and his face was perfectly black. The audience was convulsed with laughter, which never ceased till the curtain fell. It was afterwards discovered that Sam Drake, a comedian of facetious inamory had obtained from the paint room a pot of liquid lampblack, and planted himself in the "flies" immediately over the representative of the defunct old matron. At intervals he poured small quantities of the sable fluid directly in the face of the unhappy youth; but at length the whole contents of the vessel descending in a shower, it was too much for flesh and blood to bear and produced the ludicrous catastrophe.

TO THE PUBLIC. PASMION in dress is the pictorial history of the times, while it is the outward reflection, or rather halo, of internal refinement, and, therefore, in order to gratify appreciative intellectuality, the undersigned has, with greatcare, purchased a superior assortment of CLOTHS, CASSI. MERES, and VESTINGS, embracing the newest styles and most elegant patterns the European market affords, which will be made up to order in artistic mode, defying superiority in cut and workmanship. In the FURNISHING LINE, Cashmere and India have poured out their offerings of Wool and Silk, the industry and intelligence of our own great country has competed in many instances successfully, in producing SHIRTS, (under and upper,) DRAWERS, GLOVES, SUSPEN-DERS. HALF HOSE, HANDKERCHIEFS, NECK TIES. STOCKS, with many other articles usual in a gentleman's toilet. Also, a good assortment of REA-DY MADE COATS, PANTS, and VESTS, cut and made like ordered work, very far superior to what is generally sold in that way. But a small profit is asked, and orders filled with punctuality.
